

FROM THE ARCTIC SEA

Return of Explorer Peary and His Party.

EXTREME SUFFERING ENDURED.

Death Stared Them in the Face While on a Futile Search For a Lost Cache of Provisions—Objects of the Voyage Only Partially Attained—Maps and Meteorological Records Made.

ST. JOHN, N. F., Sept. 23.—Lieutenant R. E. Peary arrived here Saturday on the Kite, after many months sojourn in the far north. His sufferings and those of his two companions are probably unexampled, and the explorer's main purpose was not accomplished. He succeeded, however, in mapping out the whole sound region, and obtaining ethnological collections in the Arctic highlands. Another year's meteorological records was also obtained.

About a year ago Peary, with Matt Henson, his colored servant, went on the Falcon as far south as Cape York, leaving his comrade, Lee, at the lodge. They left the Falcon at Petawak Glacier and started back to camp, which they reached Sept. 6, to begin their last year's work.

No time was lost in securing a winter's supply of meat, and a number of deer and hare were shot. This meat was secured by October. The next thing was to find the caches in which the previous season's provisions for the long journey across the ice had been placed. Peary and Henson were imprisoned in a tent in a snowstorm for six days, during which three and a half feet of snow fell, and it was impossible to locate the caches. Peary thus describes his feelings:

"I felt like a man shipwrecked and cast on a desert shore, with only the clothes on his back. I must begin again at the very bottom, with my previous season's work blotted out entirely. Nearly all my biscuit and milk, all my compressed pea soup, and every ounce of two fundamental items of Arctic sledge rations, pemmican and alcohol, in all a ton and a half, were gone. The chances were 10 to 1 against accomplishing anything under such an enormous handicap.

"Returning to the lodge on Oct. 20, I found the entire land buried as I had never seen it before. The following days were gloomy ones at the lodge, but the idea of giving up that for which we were here never occurred to us. The sun was seen for the last time on Oct. 23, but during the remainder of October and November five more deer were added to our stock. Several short sledge trips were undertaken and a general plan of campaign and scheme of equipment and rations for the spring campaign was decided upon. Raw deer meat for ourselves and walrus for the dogs must take the place of pemmican, and coal oil serve as a substitute for alcohol. I had nothing to replace the invaluable pea soup. Only 130 pounds of biscuit in tins and less than two cases of milk. The necessary amount of the former must be made up from bulky soap's biscuit in open boxes."

All the winter preparations were going on and on Feb. 17 the sun was seen for the first time. Then the dogs were secured and on April 1 Peary left the lodge with Lee, Henson, six Eskimos and 63 dogs.

"Two of the Eskimos," says Peary, "were to accompany us for the day, the other four forming a supporting party to accompany us as far as the site of the previous season's pemmican cache, 124 miles distant. Six marches brought us to the vicinity of this cache. The weather during this time was clear and very cold. The biting wind had nipped the toes, cheeks and noses of all of us, in Lee's case, as it afterwards proved, quite severely. On the following day three Eskimos with a sledge and 10 dogs started back, while we continued to advance with three sledges and 41 dogs, myself leading with 11, Lee with 14 and Henson with 16."

A combination of unfavorable circumstances followed and Lee's toe gave him much trouble. The fifth march brought them into a violent windstorm, which worked havoc with the dogs and their harness. The close of the week found them only 200 miles from the moraine. They were 7,000 feet above the sea and suffered severely. Any extra exertion brought bleeding at the nose. Strength of men and dogs was reduced fully one-half. Lee's toe grew worse, and it was necessary to concentrate everything in two sledges. The temperature all this time ranged from minus 10 to 40 degrees. With their entrance on the fifth landward, a series of accidents to one of the sledges occurred, and two days were lost in repairing it. The dogs went to pieces with starting rapidly, only 11 being left, and Peary and his companions were obliged to help the sledges. Everything possible was cached and they pushed on.

Finally, when 16 miles from land, Peary and Henson, with rifles and four days' provisions, started out after musk oxen, leaving Lee with the dogs. They reached land and it began snowing. "This weather continued," says Peary, "while we remained on land—two days and nights—and we had to find our way back to the tent through snow and fog. During this trip we traveled until we were so fatigued and our feet so sore, lame and bruised by sharp rocks, that we could scarcely walk. We slept on the rocks without shelter, and returned to our tent exhausted with our efforts and disappointed at finding no fresh trace of musk oxen."

"Two alternates now lay before us. We could start back at once, and 200 pounds of walrus meat reserved for dog food for the return journey would probably keep the dogs alive two-thirds of the distance home. Then we could drag the loads the remaining distance ourselves. The other alternative was to give some of this meat to the dogs now, and then go on with them in search of musk oxen as long as it lasted. If not, then we must retrace those weary 500 miles dragging our own supplies, with the certainty that one (Lee), and the probability that all of us would never complete the journey. But there was a chance. We were Americans. We would not turn back."

Everything for the return trip was cached and the little party descended to land, being forthwith snowbound for two days. Lee was again left behind, and again Peary and Henson pushed forward to find musk oxen. The arduous land travel increased the two hunters' appetites to a painful degree, but in three days before musk oxen were sighted and killed. Henson then went back for Lee and the sledges, and again the intrepid party moved on. Peary then continues his narrative thus:

"We pushed forward toward the bay over the most unpromising region, up and down steep slopes, precarious snow-drifts, through boulder-strewn gorges, lifting, pushing, almost carrying our sledge, sometimes travelling for hundreds of yards on sharp snow, the rocks breaking the sledge every few hours. At the end of four days we reached a precipitous shore completely exhausted. The last wood had been used in repairing our sledge, which was already nearly worn out. Nearly all our footgear was cut to pieces by sharp stones."

"The next stage of the journey was entirely impracticable for sledges, and everything had to be backed down the steep shore bluffs. Then we found over three or four miles of crevasse-riven glacier before reaching the bay. In our present condition we were not equal to the task. We had to take a rest before advancing further, and to insure rest we had to have more musk oxen. We turned back to hunt for them, but a careful search failed to discover them or any fresh tracks. And there was nothing left for us but to retreat while our dogs were yet in fair condition. The snow on the land was scant when we arrived, but had been rapidly disappearing, and at least half of the return journey to the moraine was made over bare rocks. This soon destroyed the sledge completely, and the load was transported the remaining distance partly on our backs and partly rolled up in muskox skins and dragged by the dogs. This consumed six days."

"At the moraine Henson constructed a small sledge from a pair of skins left there for that purpose, and by a forced march we reached our cache 35 miles inland. I had now nine dogs and 16 days' rations of muskox meat for them. For ourselves I had 17 days' rations of raw venison. We were most fortunate in having favorable weather. Snowshoes were used continuously on the sledges for runners on the ice, and twice a day much of our venison was fed to the dogs. Every expedient known to the Eskimos was resorted to to facilitate our progress, and in spite of two days' delay from illness and one from unfavorable weather, the lodge was reached on June 25, and we were completely unharmed. One dog reached the lodge with us, and the last of our provisions were consumed at the beginning of the last march, 21 miles from the lodge. The Kite arrived in Whale sound July 31, and on Aug. 3 we went aboard."

CLAIMS AGAINST CUBA

Two American Citizens That Have Grievances.

BOTH APPEAL TO WASHINGTON.

One Wants Eighty Thousand Dollars Damage For Being Ejected From Government Property, While the Other Will Ask an Indemnity For False Imprisonment—Latest From Cuba.

TAMPA, Fla., Sept. 23.—John Repko, for 15 years proprietor of the Romana Grand Continental hotel at Havana, arrived here last night. He is a Hungarian by birth, but became an American citizen 10 years ago. The kitchen and warehouses connected with his hotel were built upon a government lot for which he paid them rental. On July 19 at midnight he and his family, consisting of his wife and six children, the oldest but nine years, were forcibly ejected from their property. Mrs. Repko was prostrated with nervousness. She was sent direct to New York the following day by the Ward line steamer Yucatan.

The ejection continued until morning, when the boarders were forced to leave the breakfast table. Every vestige of furniture was removed and the entire property confiscated. All this was occasioned by a debt of $800 which Repko owed the government for rent on land. Repko was then taken sick and remained so several weeks. He has placed his case under the management of F. R. Swift, editor of the Bridgeport (Conn.) Herald, to whom all papers pertaining to it have been forwarded. The damages claimed are $30,000. Repko will remain here several days, and then proceed to Washington, where he will ask the government to recognize his claim and request damages.

INDEMNITY DEMANDED.

John Sowers Claims to Have Been Imprisoned Without Cause.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—John Sowers, an American sugar planter at Sagua, Cuba, who was imprisoned by General Campos and subsequently ordered to summarily leave Cuba, passed through Washington Saturday night on his way to his old home at Warrenton, Va. He will return to Washington in a few days to present his case to the state department.

Sowers claims that he was in no wise identified with the insurgents, but was nevertheless imprisoned by Campos' orders for 10 days and subjected to many indignities. When released he was forced to leave Cuba on 24 hours notice. The brief time allowed did not give him an opportunity to arrange for the departure of his wife and children who are still in Cuba. Mr. Sowers will ask the state department to demand a heavy indemnity from Spain for interfering with the rights of a law-abiding American citizen.

Mr. Sowers says he believes the Cubans will be successful in achieving their independence. "They are fighting," said he, "not so much against the Spanish, as to throw off the yoke of a government which they regard as oppressive and detrimental to their interests."

HAVANA, Sept. 23.—Official advices received here say that a column of troops near Santa Domingo fought a band of insurgents, inflicting a loss of five killed, 12 wounded and four prisoners taken. The troops also took six saddie horses and a number of arms.

Toll House Burned by White Caps.

CONNERSVILLE, Ind., Sept. 23.—White Caps burned a toll house two miles southeast of this city Saturday night. The tollgate had been erected recently by the Brookville and Connersville Turnpike company, and citizens were strongly opposed to collecting toll, which resulted in the fire of Saturday night. Those engaged in the burning of the house were masked and watched the flames until the house was entirely consumed. No damage was done to surrounding buildings. A large crowd gathered and for a while a battle seemed almost certain, but the White Caps were heavily armed and determined in their work.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., Sept. 23.—The strike at the Blackinton Woolen company's mills, at Blackinton, has ended and the 250 employees returned to work this morning with the understanding that the company will restore the 10 per cent reduction as soon as the condition of business will admit it. This was decided at a meeting of the strikers Saturday evening. The strike was in progress about four weeks.

Wife of Colonel Eadie, Second in Command of the Salvation Army.

The girl has for sometime past been a student at Iowa college. She came here from Grinnell Friday night, and was met by Stinson. The couple took rooms at the Asher House, where the tragedy occurred. The reason for the killing is unknown. Stinson simply left a note to his father to take charge of his remains, making no explanation.

BERATED OUR FLAG.

Mowbray, the English Anarchist, Called Down.

STOPPED IN HIS CHICAGO SPEECH.

The Police Permitted Him to Abuse Them and the Newspapers, but the Stars and Stripes Must Be Held Sacred—The Speaker Left the Platform and Escaped in the Crowd.

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—Charles Wilfred Mowbray, the English anarchist, who came to this city for the purpose of teaching his doctrine of red flag and no government, was stopped in the middle of a speech yesterday afternoon in Belmont park by the police. He was so badly frightened that after a few words of explanation, in which he said that he did not mean to teach violence, he hurriedly left the platform and made his escape in the crowd.

Mowbray has been disappointed on all sides since he has been in the city. The trades and labor assembly, the recognized central body of trades unionists, denounced him at its meeting, and the attendance at the park yesterday was very small.

Police Inspector Schaack, who was a prominent figure in the troublesome times of 1886, made preparations to nip any kind of a radical demonstration before it had gone too far. He was present with a detail of police in citizens' clothes, and a block away 100 uniformed officers and three patrol wagons waited a signal to make a descent on the gathering.

Mowbray started in by abusing the police and the newspapers. Inspector Schaack bore this without interference, but when the speaker began berating the stars and stripes, and hoping for the glorious day when the red emblem would be raised triumphantly aloft the inspector gave the signal, and Captain Schuetler, who was on the platform, laid a heavy hand on the shoulder of the speaker. Mowbray had not expected this, and was plainly disconcerted. He stammered and looked dismayed, and attempted an explanation, but the big police captain quietly remarked: "You have got to stop that kind of talk," and that settled it.

There was a howl from the crowd at the interruption, and several of the more radical ones attempted to climb the stairs leading to the platform. They were prevented from doing so by the police. Richard Braunschweig, a loud-mouthed radical, who can scarcely speak a word of English, managed to get on the platform and attempted to shove Capt. n Schuetler to one side. He was seized by two detectives.

Mrs. Lucy Parsons was present and after Mowbray's experience she remarked: "It don't surprise me any. Liberty is dead in Chicago. Any one can see that." To which the police inspector replied: "Anarchy is dead in Chicago for all time."

From Washington he will go to London, then to Paris and thence to Athens. At these points he will act as the agent of members of each nationality now residing in Hawaii who have claims against the Hawaiian government.

Times: "Roby" McCall, who as a steamboat clerk in the Portsmouth trade is known by every human being in the immediate Ohio Valley, between that city and Cincinnati, has been in charge of the office of the Ruth since that boat's entree as an opposition packet. The other day something went wrong with the management which took it out on "Roby" by discharging him. CINCINNATI TOBACCO MARKET.

Manufacturers Liberal Bidders Last Week, but Little Improvement Noted.

Furnished by the Cincinnati Leaf Tobacco Warehouse Company:

Offerings for the week, 1,411 hhd.; rejections for the week, 483 hhd.; actual sales, 928 hhd.; receipts for the week, 1,473 hhd. The market the past week showed some improvement in the bidding on fine tobacco; all the manufacturers were liberal buyers. No change for the better was notable in either medium or low grades, though they also received full attention. The offerings were large on Wednesday, but only moderate the balance of the week. Rejections not as numerous as last week. Receipts liberal. It seems that tobacco, which was the last of the staples to be affected by the general depression in the year 1893, is going to be the slowest also in the revival. For while there is a tendency upward in nearly all other articles, iron in particular, which is thought to be the barometer of the business of the country, leaf tobacco continues to drag. This is not only the case with burley goods, but all others are experiencing an almost unprecedented dullness.

Domestic cigar leaf is lower in price than has been known for many years, and we have no doubt that the cheapness of filler goods in these kinds induced their use in many places where our burley low grades would be taken under ordinary circumstances. This, we think, is principally the case in foreign countries, and is probably one of the causes of the lesser demand for our trashes.

Another fact, which is becoming more and more apparent, is that the consumption, under the adverse business conditions of the last two years, has not kept pace with the production. There have been two successive partial failures of the tobacco crop, without producing any permanent effect on prices, and without a shortage in the article making itself felt in the least degree. We must conclude from all these considerations that prevailing prices will probably not change very much, and holders will do well to accept the situation and reduce their stocks.

At the Cincinnati House, T. L. Best, Mason County, sold six hogheads at $16.25, $14.75, $14.50, $14.25, $14.25, $18.

Cora Van Tassell Coming.

We with pleasure call attention to the engagement of Maysville's favorite little artiste, Cora Van Tassell, who will hold the boards at the opera house this evening in her new and beautiful play "Tennessee's Partner." Read the following complimentary notice from the Chicago Times:

Cora Van Tassell, a star new to Chicago, made her first appearance at the Alhambra in Scott Marble's latest play, "Tennessee's Partner." Both play and star were well received by a large audience. The scene of the comedy-drama is laid in the Rocky Mountain region, but there is nothing melodramatic about the incidents. Miss Van Tassell is a sprightly comedienne and she is well supported by C. B. Hawkins and an excellent company. The Rocky Mountain band and Sand Hill quartette are amusing features.

Mr. Fred Miller, of Irving, Ill., writes that he had a severe kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back and also that his bladder was affected. He tried many so called kidney cures but without any good result. About a year ago he began use of Electric Bitters and found relief at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to cure of all kidney and liver troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price only 50c. At J. James Wood's drug store.

COMMISSIONER'S SALE!

FAYETTE CIRCUIT COURT.

Andrew Lytle and Others,
Petition to Others.

By virtue of a judgment in the above styled case, rendered in the Fayette Circuit Court the 10th day of September, 1895, I will on Thursday, Oct. 17, 1895,

as Special Commissioner, sell at public sale a tract of land containing one hundred and seven-six acres and seventy-eight poles (176.76)

situated on the Russell Cave pike, in the county of Fayette, adjoining the farms of Thomas Carrick, George Graves, L. P. Huffman, Jacob Sidener and Charlie Harp.

Said sale will be made upon the following terms:

One-third on the 1st day of March, 1896, one-third on the 1st day of March, 1897, and one-third on the 1st day of March, 1898, with interest at rate of six per cent per annum from the 1st day of March, 1896, until paid. Purchaser will be required to execute bond with approved security, complying with terms of sale. Lien will be returned for the deferred payments. Possession of said place will be given on the 1st of March, 1896.

Said farm is situated 11 miles from Lexington,

8 miles from Paris, 8 miles from Georgetown, and 1 1/2 miles from Centerville depot on the Midland railroad, and one-fourth of a mile from church, school house, postoffice, store and blacksmith shop. Upon the farm is a good residence of seven rooms, stock barn, ice house, meat house, buggy house, corn cribs and cabins. This is one of the best fenced farms in Fayette county, more than 100 acres in grass. On it there are five well filled pools of never failing stock water, a good cistern and deep well; an orchard of select fruit. The land is naturally good, and is now in fine condition for cultivation.

The Old Union and Hann's Mill pike runs through the farm, leaving upon the south side

about 47 acres, and upon the north side 120 acres and a fraction. These two portions of the farm will be offered first separately, and then as a whole, and the highest bid will be accepted. The sale will take place at 11 o'clock a. m.

Special Commissioner.
